GUESTS WERE PLENTIFUL.

Formal Opening of Grand Hotel Here Drew Large Crowds.

The Formal Opening of the Grand Hotel which took place yesterday proved a success far beyond the expectations of the management. Guests were present from the surrounding towns and several of the nearby cities and all express themselves as highly pleased, numerous exclamations of surprise being uttered that a hotel on this elaborate scale should be found outside of the large cities.

The Rathskellar which is the only one in the Monongahela Valley came in for a large share of this praise many declaring it to be one of the finest, best equipped and most up-to-date in all particulars, they had ever seen. The hotel was nicely decorated for this occasion palms innumerable, being tastefully arranged in the office and entry The Rathskellar also presented a pleasing appearance.

Both afternoon and at 6 o'clock a sumptuous Table De Hote Dinner was served amid beautiful strains of music rendered by a local orchestra hidden by a mass of palms and ferns. Yesterday can well be termed the red letter day of the dining room. At 3 o'clock promptly the Rathskellar was thrown open to the public and from that hour until closing time the place was constantly filled by those seeking refreshments. It was necessary to secure a corps of extra waiters from the city to ensure prompt service. An elaborate bill of fare will be served in the Rathskellar at all times. Manager Edgerton expresses himself as highly pleased with the opening and resting assured that the public will appreciate his efforts will endeavor to constantly look to the entire comfort of his patrons.

A special street car was to have brought a large number of guests from Pittsburg, members of the Homeless 26 but unfortunately there was some misunderstanding as to connections. and they were deprived of the pleasure of being present.

Among the out of town guests were the names of G. M. Williams, secretary of the Homeless 26, Robert L. Ream, G. F. Shnuke, M V. Crowe, J P Bradley, L. N. Guiber, J. C Cunningham and L. Butler of Pittsburg. J. S McWilliams, of Greensburg, J H Trescher of Jeannette, Dr J. Kennedy, of Irwin, Charles E. Nitz, of Toledo, Ohio, Fred W. Stickle, of McKeesport, C. F. Randolph, of Beaver Falls, G. A Gardner, of Coraopolis, O R Carpenter, of Connellsville, W. H Mathews, of Ligonier, George F West, of Charleroi, F. C. Devinney, of Belle Vernon and Dr. R M. Wells of Coal Centre.

Who Holds It?

Last evening the Firemens raffle which was to decide the winner of the $25 worth of merchandise to be purchased at one of the several local stores was pulled off, the lucky ticket being No. 773. The holder of the ticket can secure his prize by presenting same to Jim Currie.

FINED FOR FIGHTING.

Two Finns were fines $5 and costs each by Mayor Shutterly this morning on a charge of drunkeness and disorderly conduct They were arrested yesterday afternoon by officer Fenton at Electric Park.

When the officer ran afoul of them they were engaged in a pitched battle over the posession of a bottle of whiskey The way these men pounded each other according to the spectators was something awful. One of them was pretty badly used up his face being covered with blood as evidence of his opponents supreme knowledge of the manly art Both were extremely penitent this morning.

Escapes From Armed Highwaymen.

Frank Statatord, a foreman of laborers in the employ of the Pittsburg & Lake Erie railroad near Dickerson Run, successfully combatted three Italians with a razor and a revolver yesterday. Stataford and other employee had just received their monthly pay and the former had remained behind to gather up the tools. The three men had attacked him and he succeeded in holding on to his pay envelope until the laborers, attracted by the pistol shots, arrived. Stataford, who was severely cut, was removed to Dawson, where he lives.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY MEETS

Members of Redstone District Come Together in This City Today.

The district meeting of the Presbyterian Missionary society of the Redstone Presbytery, was held today in the Presbyterian church of this city. The delegates from out of town arrived here this morning and proceeded to the church.

Devotional exercises led by Mrs. L. S. Nigley, of Little Red Stone, occupied the morning session, lunch being served later in the Sunday School room of the building. This afternoon an elaborate program was carried out, many prominent speakers addressing the audience Rev. Irwin, of Rehobeth, whose brother is at present a missionary in China, was to have spoken, but to the disappointment of the gathering, it was impossible for him to be present. Those who spoke were Rev. Bevier, of Fayette City, Rev. Baker, of Belle Vernon and Rev. R. S. Calder of this city.

The meeting was a highly successful one and all present are well pleased with the results. About thirty-five delegates representing all of the surrounding towns were in attendance.

The Rise In the River.

It is little short of astonishing to see how little water is required to float the southern river steamers, a boat loaded with perhaps a thousand bales of cotton slipping along contentedly where a boy could wade across the stream. Once, however, the Chattahoochee got too low for even her light draft commerce, and at Gunboat shoals a steamer grounded. As the drinking water on board needed replenishing, a deck hand was sent ashore with a couple of water buckets. Just at this moment a northern traveler approached the captain of the boat, and asked him how long he thought they would have to stay there.

"Oh, only until that man gets back with a bucket of water to pour into the river," the captain replied. Presently the deck hand returned, and the stale water from the cooler was emptied overboard. Instantly, to the amazement of the traveler, the boat began to move.

"Well, if that doesn't beat thunder!" he gasped.

The fact was that the boat, touching the bottom, had acted as a dam, and there was soon backed up behind her enough water to lift her over the shoal and send her on down the stream.—Harper's Weekly.

Galien, Mich.

Gentlemen: I bought three bottles of your medicine from my druggist. The medicine rendered me very good service, but I am sorry to say that the druggists here are all sold out of your medicine. I should have bought six bottles instead of three. I will gladly take six bottles of the Nervine and Blood Tonic, and request that you write me, if you are able to read this, for I am rather old to write. I have suffered six years from NERVOUS TROUBLE, caused by a fall, and my whole body remained in a tremble, but no pain. Every doctor I consulted failed to help me, and I was compelled to give up all housework. Then I read your advertisement and bought your medicine, and almost immediately after commencing its use I was a new woman I hope you will write me at once, and tell me how much money I must send, as I am anxious to get to using your medicine again soon. With most hearty regards, I remain,

BERTIE'S INDECISION

By Ina Wright Hanson

Copyright, 1906, by Homer Sprague

Martha's eyes were troubled as she hung up the receiver.

"Just like Bertie," she mused, taking up her coat, cap and goggles and going slowly up the stairs. "Exactly like Bertie. This morning we were to spend our last afternoon sailing; at noontime he sent a messenger to say he had changed his mind and would come in his automobile; now he telephones that we will go on our wheels to the redwoods."

"Unstable as water, but handsome as a king—ought to be," was her thought a few minutes later. They were walking down the garden path to the bicycles waiting at the gate.

"Here's a flower for you," he said gayly, stooping to pick a pelargonium. "Fitting symbol of you is this Martha Washington. Not a bit high toned, but smiling alike on the rich and the poor; delicately colored, but sturdy for all that, my Martha."

She responded absently to his chatter. She was glad he did not seem to expect much of her in the way of conversation.

"I suppose you have been wondering why I changed my mind so often."

They had walked up hills and wheeled down them and over the level places and along the cool shady path to the redwoods. They were sitting where a streamlet leaped forward to kiss the feet of the ferns; where the redwoods gave out a soothing fragrance. A few steps away was garish sunshine, but here shade and coolness and quiet. Martha's troubled heart lightened, and she smiled winsomely into Bertie's face.

"Why?" she queried.

"Because I am going to ask you something, and I wanted to choose the best place for it. This is the best of all, isn't it, beloved? I want you to marry me, Martha, tonight and go away with me or not go away. I don't know that I care anything about seeing New York, anyway."

"You want me to marry you tonight for fear that by Christmas or September or tomorrow you might change your mind? Thanks for the compliment, and no, thank you, for the offer."

Bertie's face was white. She was savagely glad she had hurt him. He might realize a little of her suffering.

"Do you think I want a husband who changes his mind on a subject as many times as there are hours in a day? What pleasure is there in you, Bertie Harrison, and what confidence can one have? We were to read to improve our minds. You began with William Tell at the arrow scene; then you took a chapter in 'Merchant of Venice;' next you thought Burton Holmes' travels"—

"Don't, Martha," Bertie interrupted. "Probably I shall thank you some time, but just now I can't stand any more than a homeopathic dose."

If Bertie had got furious with her or if he had cried—she felt as if she would not have been surprised to see him cry like a girl—she could have kept on pelting him with her sharp words, but to have him quiet and white—that was something she could not bear. Tears dropped on the Martha Washington in her cold hand.

"Forgive me, dear; I didn't mean"—

"Pardon me, Martha; I think you meant exactly what you said. In the flash of your words I see what I wonder I have failed to discover heretofore. Isn't there a saying that if you can properly diagnose a case the cure is half effected? If I overcome the fault and make a man of myself may I expect your favor, Martha?"

She shook her head.

"I can't have any faith in you, Bertie, but after all you are not to blame. You can't be different. There are too many odds against you. It's hereditary. My father knew your father well. Gemini is your birth sign—two forces pulling in opposite directions. Then your fortune stands in your way and even your name. You can never expect a Napoleon of a Bertie."

"Can any good come out of Nazareth?" he said bitterly. "But you remember the best did come out of Nazareth. If you cared for me"—

"I care, Bertie, if that's any consolation. I could wait years for you, but"—

"Well, that's enough. Bertie threw up his cap and caught it as it came down. The red came back into his smooth cheeks. "Now I will fare forth into the world and show you what a man's will can do in spite of heredity and astrology and all the rest. You'll see, Maid Martha."

This sudden change of spirit was so like variable Bertie that Martha sighed.

"I'm sorry I can't encourage you."

It was a year before news came from the absent Bertie. Martha might have inquired from his friends in her own city, but she was too proud. He had turned from her as lightly, as easily, as he had always flitted from one phase of life to another—a butterfly, the thought scornfully. Why should the waste tears on him? So she spent her days among her flowers and books, and if her nights were not always peaceful she gave no sign.

At the year's end a thick packet came to her. With nervous, trembling haste she tore off string and paper and brought forth Bertie's diary.

"And to think I doubted him," she sobbed as she found her name on every page.

He had taken with him to New York $100 of his fortune, pledging himself not to touch another penny of it till a year had gone. He had sought service immediately, beginning with the most menial tasks. How his sensitive nature loathed them none knew better than Martha. He had kept at each employment till he found something a step higher.

At the end of four months he discovered a friend of his father, who offered him a clerkship and gave him freely all the information he needed. It was when he was established in this that he had made his code of rules.

After office hours a two hour walk, dinner, then study till 11, his bedtime. This was not to be varied for six days. Sundays were to be free.

"I am beginning," he wrote, "on Macaulay's history. I swear not to take up anything else till these volumes are finished."

"Can he be strong enough, the dear, brave boy?" Martha wondered as she read eagerly on, but it was when she was smiling over some whimsical, happy thought, written in Bertie's happy expression, that it came.

"Failed!" on a dozen pages. Then one bore bravely a line from Goldsmith, "Our greatest glory consists not in never failing, but in rising every time we fail."

After that was the continuation of the arduous routine. On the last page he had written, "If I do not win my Martha after all, I feel that I shall come somewhat nearer to deserving her!"

Another six months dragged by. The diary contained no clew to his address save New York city, so that Martha could not send him encouragement and loving messages of which her heart was full. She felt that she deserved the suspense, but it was fearfully hard to bear. When it seemed to her that she could endure it no longer, an ominous yellow envelope came to her.

"Bert Harriman seriously ill in B. hospital; constantly calling Martha."

Even in her distress Martha noticed "Bert," not "Bertie," mute tribute to his winning battle against birth signs, heredity and fortune.

Less than a week later Martha sat trembling in the office of B. hospital while a sweet faced nurse talked to give her time to regain her control.

"It was 'Martha, Martha, Martha,' till Mr. Dean, his employer, decided to look through his belongings for a possible clew. We found your name and address and ventured to telegraph. He is rational now, but naturally extremely weak. You may see him, but not for long."

"How did he get the fever?" Martha quavered.

"Overwork. Mr. Dean saw that he was doing too much, but his advice was not heeded. Mr. Harrison would reply that in six months he would take a vacation. Then came the great storm. Mr. Dean warned him, but he would walk for two hours, no matter what the weather. Of dogged persistency to an idea Mr. Dean said he never saw his equal."

The nurse's keen eyes saw that Martha's trembling lips had grown quiet, and she answered the smile in her wet eyes cheerily.

But when at last Martha was by her lover's side she was the weaker of the two.

"I felt all day that you were coming, dear," he said quietly. "You have waited for me, haven't you?"

Fiercely restrained sobs choked back her answer, but she laid her head on Bertie's pillow, and he was content. Next day they awaited the coming of the minister with prayer book and ring.

Seventeenth Century Panegyrics.

George II. inquired why Milton did not write his "Paradise Lost" in prose. One sympathizes more with Stephen Duck, the peasant poet, who read the great epic over "twice or thrice with a dictionary before he could understand the language." We find ourselves somewhat at a loss to understand the language in which were couched the fulsome panegyrics of the late seventeenth century. Dr. Hill selects two which it would be hard to surpass. The first is Dryden's to Roscommon:

How will sweet Ovid's ghost be pleased to hear
His fame augmented by a British peer!

Cant goes almost farther in the second and blasphemy a good deal farther. It is Halifax's lament for Charles II.:

In Charles, so good a man and king, we see
A double image of the Deity.
Oh, had he more resembled it! Oh, why
Was he not still more like and could not die?

This seems unsurpassable. Yet if Dr. Hill had been concerned with the poems of Mr. Richard Duke he would doubtless have secured an almost equally startling couplet in memory of a monarch whose wit has been more often extolled than his virtue:

Good Titus could, but Charles could never say
Of all his royal life he lost a day.

—Professor W. P. Trent in Forum.

His Ambition.

A new vicar was being shown round the parish by his warden.

"The natives are a hardy lot, sir," he said, "but you haven't seen Peter Sparks. He's the quaintest character in these parts."

This individual turned out to be the sexton, and he was discovered ringing the church bell.

"Is not this bell ringing almost too much for you, my friend?" asked the vicar sympathetically, noting the bent figure of the old man. "You must be a great age?"

"Yessir, yessir," mumbled the old fellow. "'Ow many years I've tolled the bell I can't tell ye, but it's beginning to tell on me. 'Owsoever, I've tolled the bell for five vicars."

"Dear me!" ejaculated the clergyman uncomfortably.

"And," continued the sexton, "I'll be happy when I've made up the 'alf dozen. I think I'll retire then!"—Glasgow Times.

"Several years since my lungs were so badly affected that I had many hemorrhages," writes A. M. Ake, of Wood, Ind. "I took treatment with several physicians without any benefit. I then started to take Foley's Honey and Tar, and my lungs are now as sound as a bullet. I recommend it in advanced stages of lung trouble." Foley's Honey and Tar stops the cough and heals the lungs, and prevents the serious results from a cold. Refuse substitutes.

A Lesson in Health

Healthy kidneys filter the impurities from the blood and unless they do this health is impossible Foley's Kidney Cure makes sound kidneys and will positively cure all forms of kidney and bladder disease. It strengthens the whole system

A man who is in perfect health, so he can do an honest day's work when necessary, has much for which he should be thankful. Mr. L. C. Rodgers, of Branchton, Pa., writes that he was not only unable to work, but he couldn't stoop over to tie his own shoes. Six bottles of Foley's Kidney cure made a new man of him. He says, "Success to Foley's Kidney Cure."

TORTURING PAIN.

Half This Man's Sufferings Would Have Killed Many a Person, But Doan's Cured Him.

Thousands of grateful people are telling every day how Doan's Kidney Pills cured them of distressing and dangerous kidney and bladder troubles.

Yet other thousands are suffering every day from these same ills. Why? They are either very negligent or very skeptical. Neglect of kidney disorders leads to dropsy, diabetes, Bright's disease and other fatal diseases.

Sincere, honest testimony like the following should convince every skeptic.

A. C. Sprague, stock dealer, of Normal, Ill., writes: "For two whole years I was doing nothing but buying medicines to cure my kidneys. I do not think that any man ever suffered as I did and lived. The pain in my back was so bad that I could not sleep at night. I could not ride a horse and sometimes was unable even to ride in a car. My condition was critical when I sent for Doan's Kidney Pills. I used three boxes and they cured me. Now I can go anywhere and do as much as anybody. I sleep well and feel no discomfort at all."

A. C. SPRAGUE.

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mr. Sprague will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Sold by all dealers; price, fifty cents per box.

Trio Arrested Saturday Night under Suspicious Circumstances Get Salty Dose.

E. A. Welber, the colored man, who is serving a sentence of five days in the boro lockup in default of a fine of $12, imposed by Mayor Shutterly, Wednesday, will soon be at liberty and it is intimated that he will be required to leave town at once. Welber conducts a small lunch counter on Fifth street and Tuesday night, he together with two young girls who were in his room, were arrested by Officer Kepple on a charge of suspicion.

A neighbor complained that Welber enticed the girls into the room and then put out the light and locked the door At least that is the way the officer found things.

The trio were lodged in the lockup. The girls gave their names as Georgiana Sertellette and Annie Sylvins and stated that they lived with the former's mother. They claimed they were 17 and 18 years of age respectfully, but they look much younger The girls denied that they were enticed into the room, saying simply that they went in to escape the cold.

Welber stated that the girls came in to g t out of the cold. When asked for what purpose the light was out he said that he had not yet had time to strike a light and accounted for the door being locked in that the girls were afraid their mother would come and take them home, as according to their ideas it was too early to return.

At the hearing they were fined $12 and costs each. The Sortellette girl's mother paid the fine but Welbur was compelled to lay his out. Welber who is as black as the ace of spades came here sometime in April and has acted as organist at the colored Baptist church here since. Welbur says he was never in trouble before.

NORTH BELLE VERNON

BELLE VERNON GOT SPANKED.

Monessen Business Men's Base Ball Team Won From the Glasstowners.

"It was an awful shame to take the money. Those Belle Vernon fellows didn't stand any show at all, why they ought to go back to Pricedale and throw lumps of coal at the pit mules for the rest of their lives. They'd get exercise this way and they'd have lots of time to get the fact that, they got entirely out of the class when they came down here to play ball, soaked in.

They are all nice fellows and I'll bet can sell every thing from a collar button to a can of "Chicago Potted Meat" but they still have to learn 'the game." But for the fact that some one had the presence of mind to yell "23" that Fan would be talking yet, but then you can't blame him for he saw that game of ball between the Belle Vernon and Monessen Business men which was pulled off yesterday afternoon.

The fact is the visitors got beaten to the tune of 8 to 6 and the look on their faces as they filed out of Atheletic Park would have made a woman trying to look real cross at hubby, jealous. On the other hand the locals were jubilant and escorted the visitors, looks and all, to the car trying, but in vain to console them.

Notwithstanding the visitors spirits encountered the toboggon with such disastrous results the witnesses enjoyed the game and nearly yelled themselves hoarse when a close play was pulled off It may be that when the Belle Vernonits recover they will' cal again." What made their pill doubly bitter was the fact that they took the lead at the start. Monessen claims they allowed this to make the game interesting.

Robt. Johnson held down the rubber for Belle Vernon, fooling eight of our men, while Bearer who handed up the curves fo Monessen made six of the visiting batsmen slash the air.

Province of Belle Vernon registered a home run Steve Helzlsouer did Monessens heavy stick work.
